Engagement in the dental profession has resulted in numerous scientific papers, with approximately 10 publications as an author or co-author in professional journals and magazines.

Active participation in numerous national and international panel discussions related to oral health

Throughout my career, I have established a broad network of over 300-350 contacts with internationally renowned speakers from more than 30-35 universities and esteemed faculties across all continents, of which I am very proud.

This network includes highly respected dental scientists and lecturers, which has been crucial in organizing major professional events in the Balkan region. I firmly believe that this extensive network can significantly contribute to the work of the Education Committee and that, with this experience and these connections, I can enhance the scientific programs and the overall success of the committee's work.

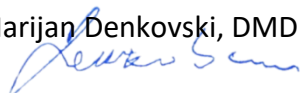

Continuous professional education in dentistry has been my passion and a significant part of my life for the past 30 years. Throughout my career, I have had the opportunity and pleasure to collaborate with various dental associations, chambers, and faculties to help meet their needs in continuing education. This is particularly important for less developed countries, including my own and others in the region, where opportunities for continuous education are limited.

My goal is to expand this passion and experience globally if elected as a member of the FDI Education Committee. I believe I am well-positioned, experienced, and qualified to support FDI in its mission to promote optimal oral and overall health for all people through education.

If given the opportunity to serve on the Education Committee, I am confident I will make an outstanding contribution and demonstrate exceptional dedication to planning and organizing scientific programs for major FDI congresses and educational events. My exemplary work in coordinating and planning scientific congresses and meetings underscores my valuable contributions and motivates me to continue striving for excellence in this field.

With respect and hope that this will help you understand my work and the significance of that work in our region, the Balkans, Southeastern Europe, and beyond, regions from which there are not many such enthusiasts and members of the FDI committee and I sincerely hope that with your valuable support, I will obtain a position on the Education Committee because with my extensive experience and a deep dedication to dental education, I believe I am an ideal candidate for this esteemed role.

Sincerely, Dr Marijan Denkovski, DMD
